Work! Goals! Loops!

How I work, set goals, and enjoy feedback

Small groups over big groups

Though my work tends to be a one-person show. Loves collaboration, though, and rubber ducking

Take notes, ask questions

Will ask even the ones that may seem "obvious," or ask you to repeat yourself. Will also take the time to research tools / methods for a project before diving in

Setting reasonable expectations

For stakeholders and myself. Also, will respect your time & expect you to do the same

Setting deadlines early / updating frequently

The earlier the better in case Something Terrible Happens™. Transparency is also golden

Feedback is ♥♥♥.

Preferably one-on-one. Writing preferred, but verbal is good, too. Values forwardness, but does not tolerate blatant rudeness

Communication Methods

How to reach me

If quick questions, troubleshooting code, lunch:

- Then: Slack me! Or knock on my cube. Or tap my shoulder.

If longer questions, requests, explanations, I'm not here:

- Then: Email me! Include as much information as you think is necessary – overexplain if you need to.

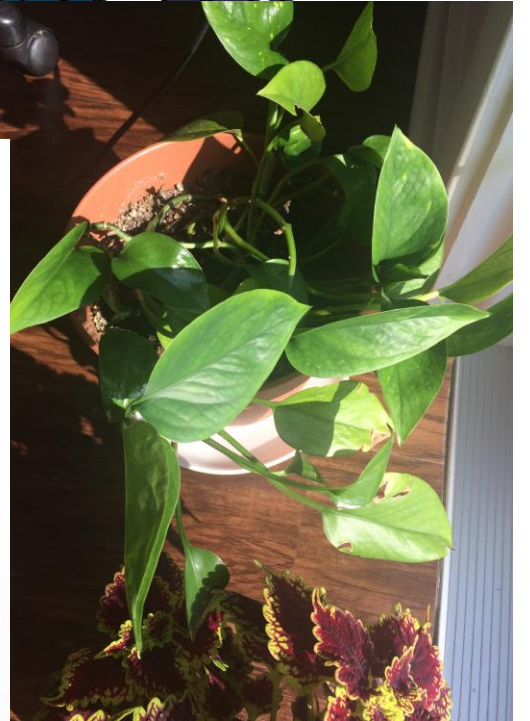

Note: I don't have Slack downloaded on my phone, but I do have my work emails connected.

Other Things

Extra facts, things to note, and pictures

- Mental health is important to me
 - Depression & anxiety, treated in the past
 - May come across as low-energy or quiet some days
- Plant enthusiast
 - I've too many, send help
- I draw/doodle a lot
 - Digital/traditional, my planner's full of doodles
- #GamerKid
 - A big fan of JRPGs, RPGs, simulators, visual novels, etc.
